The Story
Tabloided:

Phyllis Latimer goes to the South Sea Islands to rejoin her husband whom she had married three years previously on the eve of his sailing. She finds him a drunken degenerate and after a few weeks of heart-broken efforts to help him brace up when his only desire is to drag her down to his level, she runs away, and goes to a neighboring island, where she poses as Pauline Leonard, the ward of John Webster, its owner. Phyllis has met Pauline on ship-board and knows enough about her to impersonate her successfully to the man who has never seen his ward. Her husband incites a native uprising against Webster, who hires Hindoo labor instead of native labor, and finding Phyllis on Webster's island, acting as secretary, drags her home with him and gives her to the natives for a human sacrifice. Webster and government police arrive in time to save Phyllis from the savages. Latimer is killed in the riot, and Phyllis and Webster confess their love for each other.

Pertinent Pointers:

The extremely unusual locale of the picture must undoubtedly create immediate interest. The Fiji Islands constitute one portion of this wide world that is not often invaded by the photoplay, and this opportunity has been availed of, to make the picture of exceptional dramatic nature. This latter is, in itself, mighty unusual for Miss Minter and the tremendous realism with which she invests her characterization has amply compensated the faith shown by casting her in such a role.
